Five Steps for Schools

1. Clearly define bullying behavior, including harassment, and cyber-bullying.

Sample Definitions:

- Bullying is negative, often repeated behavior with the intent to hurt someone physically or emotionally and involves an imbalance of power (physical size, social status) between the aggressor(s) and the target(s).
- Cyber-bullying is the use of cell phones, texting, social networking sites, email, or other electronic media to harass, threaten or intimidate someone.

Adapted from www.bullyingprevention.org

2. Establish clear policies and procedures for how your school will address bullying behavior.

- Sample Policy: While Montana is one of only two states that do not legally require schools to have anti-bullying policies, school districts are required by the Board of Public Education to have an anti-bullying policy. For a model policy your district can use, click here:
- Build Awareness and Skills: Provide training for teachers, staff, (bus drivers, lunch room attendants, playground supervisors) students, and parents that includes what bullying is, how to prevent it and appropriate intervention.
- For a list of resources of bullying prevention and intervention strategies click on the Resources tab.

3. Make bullying prevention and intervention an essential part of the school environment.

- Get People Involved - Form a team or give an existing team responsibility for coordinating the school's bullying prevention efforts. Make sure the team includes administrators, teachers, school staff, students and community members.
- Know the Status Quo - Conduct a survey to analyze the current level of reported bullying behavior at the school.
- Click here to find out more about the My Voice survey.
- An Ounce of Prevention is Worth.... - Start bullying prevention and intervention education early. Begin teaching students in kindergarten or elementary school; don't wait until middle school.
- It's Everyone's Business - Train school personnel and students in appropriate ways to respond when they observe bullying. For helpful information on appropriate intervention strategies go to www.stopbullying.gov or click on the resources tab link

4. Promote a safe school and classroom culture where educators model positive behavior.
- Conduct regular assessments of the school culture and track the reported incidents of bullying.
 - Require faculty and staff to model the same positive behaviors expected of students with one another and with students.
 - Provide on-going training for school staff.
 - Increase adult supervision in areas identified as “hot spots” such as hallways between classes, playground, the lunch room and bus stops.
 - Commit to bullying prevention for the long term. Successful prevention efforts are an on-going part of the school curriculum and culture.

5. Know How to Report Bullying Incidences

- Reports of bullying or retaliation may be made by staff, students, parents or guardians or others and may be oral or written depending on the severity of the bullying incident.
- Reports made by students, parents or guardians, or other individuals who are not school or district staff members, may be made anonymously.
- Identify a person who is the point of contact at the school for parents, students, teachers and staff who need to take additional steps in reporting and/or intervention.
- Make a variety of reporting resources available to the school community including, but not limited to, an Incident Reporting Form, a voicemail box and a suggestion box.
- Depending on the severity of the incident, the school may also need to contact law enforcement authorities.

The Bystander

Bullying situations usually involve more than the aggressor and the target. They also involve bystanders—those who watch bullying happen or hear about it.

Depending on how bystanders respond, they can either contribute to the problem or the solution. Bystanders rarely play a completely neutral role.

Hurtful Bystanders

Some bystanders encourage the bullying by laughing, cheering, or making comments. And other bystanders join in the bullying once it has begun.

But Most Bystanders passively accept bullying by watching and doing nothing. Without realizing it, these bystanders also contribute to the problem. Passive bystanders provide the silent acceptance that allows people who bully to continue their hurtful behavior.

Bystanders have the power to play a key role in preventing or stopping bullying.

Some bystanders intervene by discouraging the aggressor, defending the target or redirecting the situation away from bullying. Other bystanders get help by rallying support from peers to stand up against bullying or by reporting the bullying to adults.

Why don't more bystanders intervene?

- They think, "It's none of my business."
- They are afraid of getting hurt or becoming another victim.
- They feel powerless to stop the bully.
- They don't like the victim or believe the victim "deserves" it.
- They don't want to draw attention to themselves.
- They fear retribution.
- They think that telling adults won't help or it may make things worse.
- They don't know what to do.

Bystanders who don't intervene or don't report the bullying often suffer negative consequences themselves. They may experience:

- Pressure to participate in the bullying
- Anxiety about speaking to anyone about the bullying
- Powerlessness to stop bullying
- Guilt for not having defended the victim

Preparing Children to Become Helpful Bystanders

Adults can prepare children to become helpful bystanders by talking to them about the different ways bystanders can make a difference and by letting them know that adults will support them when they step forward.

Fact Sheet for Students

What is Bullying?

Bullying is negative, often repeated behavior with the intent to hurt someone physically or emotionally and involves an imbalance of power (physical size, social status) between the aggressor(s) and the target(s).

Physical bullying:

- Hitting, kicking, or pushing someone...or even just threatening to do it
- Stealing, hiding or destroying someone's things
- Making someone do something he or she doesn't want to do

Verbal bullying:

- Name-calling
- Teasing, taunting
- Insulting or otherwise verbally abusing someone

Emotional bullying:

- Refusing to talk to someone
- Excluding someone from groups or activities
- Spreading lies or rumors about someone
- Making someone do something he or she doesn't want to do

Cyber-bullying:

Someone can harass, threaten, or intimidate using computers, cell phones and social networking sites by:

- Sending hurtful or threatening emails or text messages.
- Posting photos or other information about without consent.
- Spreading lies and rumors.
- Creating a group or social networking page to target or exclude someone.

If you are being bullied, remember:

- Don't blame yourself. It is not your fault. No matter what someone says or does, you should not be ashamed of who you are or what you feel.
- Be proud of who you are. Despite what a bully says, there are many wonderful things about you. Keep those in mind instead of the messages you hear from bullies.
- Get help. Talk to a parent, teacher, counselor or other trusted adult. Seeing a counselor does not mean there is something wrong with you.

What You Can Do If You are Being Bullied

Tip # 1: How to respond as bullying is happening

- Walk away. Bullies want to know they have control over your emotions so don't react with anger or retaliate with physical force. If you walk away, ignore them, or calmly and assertively tell them you're not interested in what they have to say, you're demonstrating that they don't have control over you.
- Protect yourself. If you can't walk away and are being physically hurt, protect yourself so you can get away. Your safety is the first priority.
- Report the bullying to a trusted adult. If you don't report threats and assaults, a bully can often become more and more aggressive. It's scary to report and no one wants to be seen as a snitch or tattletale, but you have a right to be safe at school. Adults can look for ways to help with the problem without letting the bully know it was you who reported them.
- Repeat as necessary. Report each and every bullying incident until it stops. There is no reason for you to ever put up with bullying.

Tip # 2: How to deal with a cyber-bully

- Do not respond to cyber-bullying messages. The bully wants to feel in control of your emotions, so the best response is no response.
- Document cyber-bullying. Save and print out emails, text messages or screenshots.
- Block the cyber-bully on your phone, IM list, websites or social media pages. Report inappropriate messages to an adult, the internet service provider or website moderator; and report threats to the police.

Tip #3: Avoid isolation

Having trusted people you can turn to for encouragement and support will boost your resilience when being bullied. Reach out to connect with family and real friends (those who don't participate in bullying) or explore ways of making new friends. There are plenty of people who will appreciate you for who you are.

- Share your feelings. Talk to a parent, counselor, coach, religious leader or trusted friend. Expressing what you're going through can make a huge difference to the way you feel, even if it doesn't change the situation.
- Don't beat yourself up. Don't make a bullying incident worse by dwelling on it or replaying it over and over in your head. Instead, focus on positive experiences you've had.

Bullying Prevention Guide for Parents

1. Talk to your child about bullying

- Make sure your children know what bullying looks and sounds like. If they know what bullying is, they will know what NOT to do and be able to recognize a bullying incident.
- Make sure you and your children know the school bullying policy and how to report an incident – whether it is your child being bullied or another student.

2. Take bullying seriously

- Listen to your kids when they talk about their days. Are they telling you about a bullying incident? Children may be embarrassed or afraid to acknowledge that they are being bullied.
- The more responsive parents and community members are, the easier it will be to stop bullying in our schools.
- Encourage your children to report incidents of bullying. Let them know that you will support them through the reporting process.

3. Report the incident to school personnel

- Share your child's concerns and specific information about bullying incidents with appropriate school personnel.
- Ask to see the school's policy on bullying.
- Work with school staff to protect your child from possible retaliation.
- Ask how the school plans to deal with the incident as well as their plans for preventing future bullying incidents.
- If you feel the problem hasn't been addressed, follow-up with the administration to make sure the report hasn't fallen by the wayside.

4. Take an active role in promoting respectful behaviors at school.

- Volunteer time to help supervise on field trips, on the playground, or in the lunchroom.
- Become an advocate for school-wide bullying prevention programs and policies.

What NOT TO Do:

- Do not ignore your child's report.
- Do not advise your child to physically fight back. (Bullying lasts longer and becomes more severe when children fight back. Physical injuries often result.)
- Do not confront the child who bullies.
- Do not confront the family of the child who bullies.

Adapted from stopbullying.gov <http://www.stopbullying.gov/parents/index.html>

What to do if your child is a bully or cyber-bully

It can be difficult for any parent to learn that their child is bullying others. The sooner you address the problem, the better chance you have of avoiding the long-term effects this behavior can have on a child. People who bully others:

- Are more likely to get into fights, vandalize property, and drop out of school.
- Have a higher risk of abusing alcohol and other drugs in adolescence and as adults.
- Are twice as likely as their peers to have criminal convictions as adults and four times more likely to be multiple offenders.
- Are more likely as adults to be abusive toward their romantic partners, spouses or children.

Warning signs your child may be a bully

Your child:

- Frequently becomes violent with others
- Gets into physical or verbal fights with others
- Gets sent to the principal's office or detention a lot
- Has extra money or new belongings that cannot be explained
- Is quick to blame others
- Will not accept responsibility for his or her actions
- Has friends who bully others

Tips for parents dealing with a bullying child

- Educate your child about bullying. Your child may have difficulty reading social signs or may not understand how hurtful their behavior can be. Foster empathy by encouraging your child to look at their actions from the victim's perspective. Remind your child that bullying can have legal consequences.
- Remember you are a model for your children. Kids learn from adults' aggressive or mean-spirited behavior as well as from acts of kindness and empathy.
- Set limits with technology. Let your child know you'll be monitoring his or her use of computers, email, and text messaging.
- Establish consistent rules of behavior. Make sure your child understands your rules and the consequences for breaking them.
- Seek Support. Talk to school personnel, mental health providers, PTA's or other parenting organizations in your community about how to address the issue. There are many good resources online. (See resources tab).

The Montana Office of Public Instruction is not responsible for implementation or enforcement of any models adopted. If a school district in Montana wishes to adopt all or part of the Model Policies provided by OPI, that school district assumes liability for the implementation and enforcement of such policies.
